

Pew has posted a web page called “Water Fluoridation: What the Science Says.” This web page features several respected public health officials, researchers and other experts sharing their views of CWF based on the considerable research that has been done. Having “the experts” on the side of fluoridation can be very reassuring to pro-CWF officials, local health officers and others who may feel alone in their communities and under siege by anti-fluoride activists. And the information on the webpage may encourage more parents, oral health advocates and others to stand their ground and reaffirm their views in support of CWF.

http://www.pewcenteronthestates.org/initiatives_detail.aspx?initiativeID=85899367159